DISCUSSION:

Keri Sullivan brings both professional expertise and lived experience to the Community Crisis Response Program Advisory Board. A lifelong Richmond resident, Ms. Sullivan works as a Case Manager at ADEiii Health, supporting individuals facing mental health, addiction, and housing crises. With over 20 years of sobriety and academic training in psychology and health and human services, she is deeply committed to advancing trauma-informed and culturally responsive crisis response in Richmond. Her continued service will help ensure that the program remains grounded in compassion, advocacy, and community insight.
