Vendor The Halleman Group

Question The Halleman Group is very interested in pursuing this process and believe based on the RFP and the pre-proposal discussion that the City has not only a well thought out set of tasks, but in our experience a realistic, not rushed, timeline to both hire an OA and compete and select a contractor before the current contract is up. That said, the sequencing of the deliverables is not quite the methodology we would prefer and ask that we are able to modify the sequencing of the deliverables. Not the specific deliverables, we are in agreement with those, just the sequencing. We believe the project, and outcome for the City, will be enhanced by allowing a modification to the sequencing of events.. Please take this questions, and our advice, into consideration and reply via this platform. Thank you.

Answer To maintain a fair and level competitive environment, the City will not modify the sequencing or milestones contained in the RFP during the solicitation period. All proposers should base their proposals on the scope, tasks, and sequencing as published. The City is open to receiving recommendations on alternative sequencing, within the proposal. All required deliverables should be addressed in the proposal, the approach should not conflict with project milestones, and the proposal should demonstrate how modified sequencing will meet the schedule constraints. Any potential adjustments to sequencing will be evaluated after selection of the owner's advisor and may be incorporated during contract negotiations or project kickoff.
